George W. Vernon. 7-30

George W. Vernon, for fifty-six years engaged in the newspaper business in Delaware State, first associated as publisher of the Delaware Republican, and later publisher and editor of the successor, the Daily Republican, died last night at his home, No. 505 West Fifth street, in Wilmington. Death came at 10.30 o'clock, and the family and immediate relatives were at the bedside at the time. Mr. Vernon had been ill for three weeks, and owing to his advanced age, and the nature of his illness, he gradually grew weaker until he quietly passed away last night. He was 81 years old, and was entitled to the designation of the Nestor of Delaware journalism.
